

Anniversary Time

Right now you can travel in Nebraska in any direction you wish and it is an odds-on bet that you wind up in a town celebrating an anniversary. In Omaha there is a centennial going on. A hundredth anniversary is occupying interest at Grand Island and Beatrice. McCook is at the high point of a celebration of its diamond jubilee.

There is something heady about a town's birthday especially when it covers the first hundred years. After it has had several the occasion becomes mostly a mark of venerability. But 100 years ago the towns that are now celebrating were largely dream children, something that would come out of and change a trackless prairie. How well those dreams came true can be seen now in innumerable places. It is an incontestable fact that Nebraska got the job done. Pioneering paid off.

It is good to reflect on a constructive and brave past and the nostalgia of old times has a strong lure. But we are sure a preview of the next hundred years would be breathtaking. The state has every reason to relish its past. And it has every reason to look eagerly toward the future. Establishment has been achieved but progress is just getting well started.

Adding To Costs

A dispatch from Washington states that the administration is quietly proposing to Congress that it raise interest rates on federal credit to farmers, businessmen, colleges and universities. It is to be hoped that Congress will not receive the suggestion as quietly as it has been given.

The change would affect disaster relief loans, Farm Home Administration credit, programs for small business and the Rural Electric Associations. The whole field is one of remedial credit designed less to earn substantial profits for the government than to improve the general economy and keep it in balance.

Of considerable importance is the proposed interest rate increase in the instance of the REA. That was a submarginal economic project requiring at the outset a long range commitment on financing to give reasonable assurance of success. It was a combination of rural work and rural risk with federal credit as the backstop. It would be just as immoral now for the government to renege on its commitment as for the REA managements to repudiate what they have done.

Congress is to be reminded that agriculture has not enjoyed the prosperity that has been visited upon other economic segments. It is paying more for what it buys and getting less for what it sells. It is in poorer position to meet current interest rates than it was five years ago. If the administration would now have increased rates it would only be contributing to a problem it is otherwise trying to solve by a farm program.

Applause For Benson

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, so the morning Lincoln Star said in its news columns, got a standing ovation from an audience of more than a thousand at Wisner. Mr. Benson or anyone else could conclude only that his farm program is a whole of a lot more popular in the Wisner locality than it is in some other sections of Nebraska and Nebraska's neighboring farm states.

Diversification on the farm is so important, we have said on this page not once but a thousand times through the years of hardship and prosperity on Nebraska farms. But diversification on rare occasions not only can be a source of strength but of weakness.

Cattle feeding is important in the Wisner locality. The yards there hold countless head of prime prize beef. The entire Elkhorn Valley produces a great deal of corn, a magnificent fertile valley; but notwithstanding the production of corn, it is to the interest of the feeder if he is to prosper by finishing cattle that corn prices do not get out of hand. And this cattle man—sometimes a rancher producing feeders—and sometimes the feeder finishing the choice beef for market—never has been too friendly toward the price support program for understandable reasons.

But at least Mr. Benson's Nebraska appearance at Wisner produced an address characterized by bluntness and candor. The elimination of surpluses, the secretary was quoted in the news columns as saying, would not solve all of the farm problem. Then what have we been talking about—or better, what has Secretary Benson been talking about since he took the cabinet post in the Eisenhower administration? It would seem that he suggests ultimate abandonment of price supports, which would take Nebraskans back to where they were in the '20's, only this time the resulting collapse would be more painful and more widespread.

If the elimination of price supports is not the final objective of Secretary Benson, then what is it? And if in the end we eliminate surpluses, only to awaken to a bad hangover, where do we go from Mr. Benson's embattled crusade against surpluses?

Poet's Lament

A Minneapolis Tribune editorial writer read that the U.S. State Department had hired basketball star Vern Mikkelsen to go over to Sweden to teach those people how to play the game. Somehow it was considered a diplomatic stroke, but the editor saw it this way:

"Old Guarder sighed and said 'alas,
The thing I feared has come to pass;
They taxed and taxed and taxed my prey
To let Mikkelsen dribble it away.'"

Editorial Of The Day

Revision

From The New York Times
The United Nations Charter is not destined to be revised in the near future. This is the not very surprising deduction to be drawn from the first session of the General Assembly Committee of the Whole, which was set up to discuss the subject of a Charter revision conference "at an appropriate time."

Everybody except the Soviets and their intimate friends agreed two years ago on the conference and an indefinite but "appropriate" time for holding it. The Charter itself required the question to be on the agenda in 1955, but it did not require the U.N. to do anything about it.

Someday the Charter certainly will be amended. Probably the Security Council will be enlarged. Possibly the veto of the Security Council on membership votes and on Council measures short of the use of armed force will be lifted. Perhaps some system of weighted voting will be introduced into the now almost all-inclusive General Assembly. But it is clear to everybody that no good can be done by trying to revise the Charter until the Soviets and the four other permanent members of the Council are willing—one vote of one such member can kill any reform.

U.S. Policy Tested By Who Tries GI

WASHINGTON — It was an impassioned plea by Secretary of State Dulles that finally reversed President Eisenhower himself regarding a Japanese trial for Sgt. William Girard. The President had stood firmly behind the Army and Secretary of Defense Wilson that Girard should face an American court-martial, until Dulles threw the whole future of American-Asiatic policy into the argument.

He warned that resentment against American GI's in Asia was so great that we might have to withdraw our troops from almost every Asiatic country. Japan, he said, had even threatened to scrap our mutual defense treaty if Sgt. Girard was tried by the United States, not Japan.

Dulles also warned that trouble was brewing in South Korea where South Koreans charge an American GI, Sgt. John Wilson, with an alleged robbery. This, on top of the killing of a Chinese "peeping tom" by Sgt. Robert Reynolds in Formosa, had played into Communist hands and aroused Asiatic populations to a dangerous pitch.

Dulles also gave the cabinet a new version of the accidental killing of the Japanese housewife on the American firing range. He said that Sgt. Girard is believed to have deliberately coaxed the Japanese woman onto the firing range by offering to let her have some scrap metal.

When she got close, he fired an empty cartridge case from a grenade launcher to scare her. The shell case accidentally hit and killed her.

Secretary of Defense Wilson disputed Dulles' version of the story, claimed Girard fired in line of duty, and was clearly under the Army's jurisdiction. At first Eisenhower stood with Wilson. But when the secretary of state argued that our entire Asiatic relations, including those with the Philippines, were at stake he agreed to a reversal.

HUMPHREY'S NEW JOB

The historic Supreme Court decision divorcing General Motors and Du Pont is going to create some problems for retiring Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey. He is to become head of National Steel, which is 28 per cent owned by his former company, the M. A. Hanna company.

Since Du Pont is now not permitted to own 20 per cent of General Motors, it's going to be difficult for the Hanna company to hang onto its 28 per cent of National Steel.

Humphrey had built up the Hanna company to be one of the most powerful industrial companies in America, including coal, iron, steel, nickel, rayon and even biscuits. His son has now succeeded him as head of the Hanna Company, and Humphrey himself is becoming head of affiliated National Steel.

It will be interesting to see whether Humphrey's cabinet colleague, Attorney General Brownell, now starts an antitrust suit against Humphrey in his new job.

Nixon Strives To Tie Together GOP

WASHINGTON — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon has sought to soothe the savage breasts of the divided Republicans by some soft music on what he called the "so-called Modern Republicanism."

The vice-president suavely suggested that the problem was solely one of definition. The author of the term, the No. 1 GOP egghead, Arthur Larson, who wrote "A Republican Looks At His Party," has identified it with the Eisenhower budget and social program which so displeases the right wing.

Nixon said that if it meant one group of Republicans should be pitted against another, he opposed it. Then he listed glowingly all that it might mean—a party which elected a president by nine million votes, appeal to the young voter, big enough to hold everybody, etc. Then he was for it.

The applause was less than deafening when he concluded with a tribute to the President. But reporters, who watched the vice-president perform his unhappy task of walking the political tight-rope, felt that he did as good a job as anyone might reasonably expect.

There are no indications whatsoever that National Chairman Meade Alcorn, the vice-president or any other party factotums are prepared to defend the "Modern Republican" barricades. In the four years just ended, the party officials and candidates chorused "Ike" without a dissenting note. He was candidate, platform and program. Now they talk Republican and laud the precinct workers.

This is clearly due in part to the new constitutional ban on a third term for the President. Mr. Eisenhower is the first lame duck to struggle with this problem, but his successors will, of course, have it, too.

Sentimental Journey Back Into The Years

Since first we were married, Mrs. F. has told me stories now and then of the convent of St. Joseph's on the Ohio, a great red brick school at the crest of a steep, wooded hill overlooking the Ohio River in Cincinnati. How she happened to come there, a very little girl out of the rough frontier area of the far West, toward the end of World War I, and how her mother entrusted her to the Sisters of Charity in order to be able to earn a living while waiting for her husband to return from overseas.

It must have been a strange experience for a pagan little girl from the harsh desert lands.

Mrs. F. has always wanted to go back, just to see if St. Joseph's was as beautiful as she remembered it to be, with the violets springing up under the great trees, and the little wagon road winding through the hills of Kentucky, across the river, and the great lawns surrounding the convent.

She had even told me of the little cemetery on the hill, where the sisters were buried when their work of charity on this earth was done. And so last week end, when business took me to that part of the country, we went back.

"It won't look the same," I had warned her. "You were very little when you were there, and everything looks big to a little girl. Besides, you've romanticized the place through the years. You probably won't remember it, at all. And it could have changed a lot, too."

We came to the stone pillars that guard the entrance, and turned in. We went up the driveway, with the lawns green on either side, and the feeling of peace you get in such a place, and all at once Mrs. F.'s hand gripped my arm hard.

"It's the same," she said, "it's the same! See, there's the statue of St. Joseph, and there's the little walk we used to start out on to go down the hill. It hasn't changed."

We went to the door and explained our presence to a smiling Sister of Charity, who said it would be all right if we wanted to stroll around the grounds. We started aimlessly, I with the curiosity of seeing something new, Mrs. F. with the glow of something old and precious revisited.

"I think it was right up there, from one of those windows, that I used to look out when I was sick and the Sisters kept me in bed," she recalled, and then added, "They have built on a couple of new wings, but it looks the same. Just the same."

A little path led us down among the trees on a slope of the hill, and there was excitement in Mrs. F.'s voice. "The violets grow just like they used to, bigger than anywhere else. Aren't they lovely?" We used to turn over leaves to find the biggest ones . . . and the bigger girls used to carry me when I got tired. Oh, look—the cemetery. We sat there near it and made dandelion garlands." She looked again at the cemetery, and we both felt a sadness. "It's grown," she said.

The afternoon grew long before we left, and even then it was hard to go. And I found that for me, as for my wife of 20 years, it had been a sentimental journey rich in its reward.

A THOUGHT FOR THE SABBATH

Stories Of Famous Hymns

In Immanuel's Land

The sands of time are sinking,
The dawn of Heaven breaks,
The summer morn I've sighed for,
The fair, sweet morn awakes;
Dark, dark hath been the midnight,
But dayspring is at hand,
And glory, glory dwelleth
In Immanuel's land.

I've wrestled on toward Heaven,
'Gainst storm and wind and tide,
Now, like a weary traveler
That leaneth on his guide;
Amid the shades of evening,
While sinks life's lingering sand,
I hail the glory dawning
From Immanuel's land.

By HORACE B. POWELL

The sentiments of this favorite hymn are those of the great Scotch Presbyterian preacher and church reformer, Samuel Rutherford, who was imprisoned for treason at the behest of his religious foes during the reign of Charles II in England and whose death in 1661 cheated the royal executioner.

Rutherford did not write the hymn. But during the months he was in prison he wrote scores of letters to his church members and friends and in these writings, nearly two centuries later, Mrs. Annie Ross Cousin, wife of another Scotch preacher, found the inspiration for a poem from which the song stanzas ultimately were taken.

Mrs. Cousin's verses were not written until 1845. Many of her lines, however, are direct quotations from the writings of the famous Presbyterian martyr and the refrain for her verses, it is said, was inspired by Rutherford's exclamation on one occasion that "Glory dwelleth in Immanuel's land." The hymn had its first publication in "The Christian Treasury" in 1857.

There is an anecdote which says that a few hours before he died, Rutherford was asked the question, "What think ye now of Christ?" His answer came like a flash: "O, that all my brethren in the land may know what a Master I have served and what peace I have this day! I shall sleep in Christ, and when I awake I shall be satisfied with His likeness."

He then predicted that he would slip away in his sleep that very night to meet his Lord. Sure, enough! When the next morning dawned, he had gone home.

Road Hogs

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: A great deal is said about fast drivers on the highways on the assumption that they are the chief menace. So long as they are remaining within the speed limit and driving with due care, I do not consider them villainous.

But I am getting mighty tired of those self-centered people who jog along busy highways stacking up cars behind them for a half mile, and promoting most of the passing accidents.

Sunday there was busy travel on one of the highways approaching Lincoln—too busy to permit much safe car passing. Yet for almost 20 miles I was sixteenth in an 18-car stackup behind one of those dogging drivers who would neither speed up nor yield right of way for any of his followers to pass. I think it was an outrage. Back of him were some people who had appointments to meet and who didn't have the afternoon off for lighthearted sightseeing, but in the name of safety and survival they had to obey the road hog up front.

Since such a fellow can't be arrested, as he deserves, the only advice to be given to the unfortunate who fall victim of him is that they allow a considerable interval between cars so that someone urgently pressed for time can work his way up out of the road block. Meanwhile, the Legislature would do well to consider legislation to discipline people who drive so as to force car stackups.

What Is The Future?

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Sen. Carpenter's recent release of University of Nebraska salaries revealed something which exists throughout faculties of many universities. Namely, that the professors who devote much time to teaching receive the least salaries. A faculty member on both teaching and research staffs receives little or no credit for his teaching, but advances in rank and salary according to the number of publications he makes in his and the university's names. The deans and department chairmen will advise their faculty of this.

What is the future for teaching professors — for the ones truly interested in the welfare of the student? What is the future of our universities, of our students? Wouldn't it be wise to consider the quality of our instruction, rather than the quantity of our publications? To remember the main purpose of our higher institutions of learning?

A FORMER STUDENT

The Little People

Anslemo, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The tendency in this country is to help only the "big" fellows. A short time ago I noticed mention about a move to loan our ex-GI's more money so they could buy farms and start homes for themselves, but now we discover it is only to help those who are well off and really need no help. No loans have yet been made in this neighborhood. Apparently none of the applicants were rich enough. Just recently a young couple was highly recommended—good workers, good managers, conservative, morally sound, good citizens in every way—but they were finally turned down. They had enough equipment, but didn't own enough cattle. The report was that if they had had 100 head of cattle, the loan would have gone through.

It seems as if we wish to help those who need no help, meanwhile turning down the little people in order to push them off the farms. It seems as if our nation wants to let the big men take over and has no use for little people any longer.

Poor Fish

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Since Khrushchev's visit I wonder if the Soviets have seized us by the hair and lead us where and when they please by means that are unfair. I wonder if it's possible that we are such poor fish we always do the opposite to what they say they wish.

ALDEN S. METCALF

Farm Bureau

Litchfield, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Bravo for the Seward County farmer for his article, "Guiding Light." He has hit the nail right on the head. I have always claimed that the Farm Bureau does not represent the true sentiment of the American farmer, but it gets credit for doing so in Washington by Benson and Ike. I would say that half of its members live in small towns and cities and are not farmers in the full sense.

As Benson is to blame for a good deal of the farm ills, so also should we place the blame at Ike's door, as he appointed Benson and backs him 100 per cent.

The farmer cannot operate at 60 or 70 per cent of parity when the other industries operate at 100 per cent or better.

I notice where the Farm Bureau is taking credit for getting REA started in 1935 when we all know that the Democrats had to cram that legislation down Republican throats. The Farm Bureau leadership is 100 per cent Republican.

Visits Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Yugoslav Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Ivan Gosnjak arrived here Friday for a 15-day visit and Soviet military and Foreign Office officials rolled out their best red carpet to welcome him.

Gosnjak's visit could result in new supplies of Soviet arms for President Tito's forces.

The United States recently announced the resumption of arms shipments, including jet planes, to Yugoslavia but said deliveries would be slower than before. Observers believed this was one of the reasons for Gosnjak's trip to Moscow.

Archie Ousted

NBA Suspends Champion

DETROIT (AP) — Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore was suspended Friday by the National Boxing Assn. and Moore, with a counterpunch, threatened to sue the NBA for one million dollars.

The veteran boxer was suspended when he officially failed to appear for a scheduled bout with top ranking contender Tony Anthony Friday night at Detroit's Olympia.

Moore was in Gelnhausen, Germany. Upon learning of his suspension and an NBA warning that his title will be declared vacant if he doesn't actually get in the ring and defend it by July 7, he stabbed back with his threat.

"Let him sue," was the reply of Floyd Stevens, NBA president. Stevens disclosed plans for a tournament to select a champion should Moore not meet his obligation to defend within a month. "I don't think it's fair to bring Anthony back into an elimination," said Stevens. "The No. 2 man will fight No. 3 and the winner will meet Anthony for the title. Perhaps, we can work the No. 4 man into it."

According to NBA's June ratings, Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, Hans Stretz of Germany and Chuck Spieser of Detroit rank in order behind Anthony. The tough New Yorker already has defeated Spieser, knocking him out in the third round of an April battle in Detroit.

Though the door was left ajar for Moore, Stevens said a defense must be made against a logical contender.

"I don't think we'd recognize a title defense in Europe against a European fighter," the NBA head said.

Stevens said his last communication with Moore was May 4. At that time Moore agreed to fight Anthony here Friday night if his terms were met, Stevens said. Moore said he wanted $100,000.

Stevens spoke briefly by telephone with Ernie Braca, Anthony's manager about a reported offer of a Los Angeles promoter to guarantee Moore $100,000 for a bout with Anthony. Stevens said nothing was definite about the offer.

"We're concerned with a reasonable defense of the title and Moore's promise to fight the winner of the Anthony-Spieser fight," Stevens said. "We're not interested in the money."

Moore denied he ever agreed to fight Anthony.

"There was no contract and no money involved," Moore said.

Phils' Rookie Spins 3-Hitter; Wins 1-0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie Jack Stanford, pitching a three-hitter and striking out 13, mowed down the Chicago Cubs 1-0 Friday night, enabling the Philadelphia Phillies to keep pace with Brooklyn. The Dodgers defeated league-leading Cincinnati 6-3, shaving the lead.

Spahn Stops Pirates 5-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Warren Spahn hurled his second shutout of the season Friday night, giving up seven hits as the Milwaukee Braves defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0 before a crowd of 21,762. Spahn was backed up by a nine-hit attack which included two doubles by Joe Adcock in his only official trips to the plate.

The victory pulled the fourth place Braves to within two games of league leading Cincinnati.

Spahn was aided by three double plays. But he didn't need much help as all of the hits he allowed were singles. In winning his sixth game against three defeats, the crafty southpaw struck out two and walked one.

Bob Purkey was cnarged with his fourth defeat against as many victories. He was racked for two runs in the second inning. The Braves scored three more runs in the seventh off reliever Roy Face.

Adcock started the second inning trouble with a double after one was out. Bobby Thomson walked. Both runners advanced on a fielder's choice. Del Crandall followed with a single to push across all the runs Spahn was to need.

Queen's Longshot Filly Surprises

By STERLING SLAPPEY

EPSOM, England (AP) — Queen Elizabeth's under-rated filly Carrozza won the 179th Epsom Oaks Friday then dug in her heels and refused to follow her royal owner into the winner's circle.

The Queen, one of the finest horsewomen in Britain, gave the lead strap a mighty jerk, smiled sweetly at the crowd and forced the excited winner to the foot of Epsom's historic stands for the unsaddling ritual.

The huge crowd of more than 100,000 people had screamed and cheered "To the Queen, To the Queen" as Carrozza finished first by half a head in a driving finish.

The margin over Silken Glider of Ireland was so close that stewards called for a photo.

A hush fell over the great mass while the photographer developed the picture.

During the nerve-wracking wait Queen Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and other members of the royal family stood first on one foot and then on the other near the foot of the stairs from the royal box.

Then came the announcement: "First, number one."

That meant Carrozza, who raced as No. 1.

Later jockey Lester Piggett confessed. The race had been so close he "did not know if I won or not. I thought so—maybe. But I was not sure."

The victory was the first in a classic race for a British Monarch since 1946 when Hypericum won the 1,000 Guineas for the late King George VI. The last time a monarch won the Oaks was in 1942 when a wartime substitute was raced at Newmarket. King George VI, the Queen's father, was the winning owner with Sun Charlot.

Trainer Noel Murless and jockey Piggett have now saddled and ridden three classic winners this season. If Piggett rides the winner of the St. Leger in Doncaster in September he will be the first four-class jockey since Rae Johnstone quadrupled in 1950.

The Murless-Piggett team won with Crepello Wednesday in the Epsom Derby and in the 2,000 Guineas. The only other classic raced this year, the 1,000 Guineas, went to Rose Royale II who was third Friday.

FULLMER VICTOR

Gains Nod Over Tiger

CHICAGO (AP) — Former middleweight champion Gene Fullmer, although fighting in constant retreat, won a unanimous 10-round decision over Ralph "Tiger" Jones at the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Jones, a 9-5 underdog, continually pressed Fullmer, but the West Jordan, Utah, toughie, came roaring off the ropes or out of the corners to pound out his victory.

There were no knockdowns in the nationally-televised bout, but Jones went down twice on slips and Fullmer once.

Referee Joey White voted for Fullmer, 49-46, in the Illinois 45-point must" scoring system. Judge Howard Walsh saw it for Fullmer, 48-43, and Judge Frank Clark voted 49-44. The AP had it 46-45, Fullmer.

Just 37 nights before, Fullmer lost his middleweight title in this same ring on a fifth round knock-out by Sugar Ray Robinson, Fullmer weighed 161 and Jones 157.

Fullmer, now owning a 41-4 record, looked more like the victim than the victor. He bled steadily from a cut along the left eye in the second round and had his forehead gashed in the seventh.

Jones, virtually unmarked, relentlessly stalked his younger foe. But every time he apparently had nailed Fullmer with a good series of punches, Fullmer retaliated with a furious attack.

Jones came out at the opening bell apparently determined to test Fullmer's jaw which proved so vulnerable to Robinson's knockout punch on May 1.

Tiger landed, all right, but Fullmer fought back and was belting Jones hard at the bell. In the second round the announced crowd of 2,679 roared at a mauling toe-to-toe exchange.

That was only the first time the two locked horns during the fight for a close range slugging match. Each time, it was Fullmer who came out slightly ahead.

In the third, a medicated patch alongside Fullmer's eye struck on Jones head, and the crowd bowed Tiger for apparent butting tactics.

Jones, disgusted with Fullmer's tango dancing, quit pressing and stood still in the fourth and got jeered as a result.

Fullmer slowed up in the middle of the fight, but was swinging lustily in the final few rounds, although his accuracy was hardly that of a former champion.

In the seventh round, Jones could be seen talking sharply to Fullmer. In his dressing room, Jones said "I told him to start fighting. That he was supposed to have been champion and he ought to fight like he was and not keep running away."

Jones said Fullmer did not reply. "He just kept running," said Jones.

PAUL AMEN

Amen Optimistic Over '57 Deacon Grid Hopes

... Ex-Lincolnite Visiting Here

By BOB MCCOY
Star Sports Staff Writer

Paul Amen, the personable ex-Lincolnite who is embarking upon his second year of football tutelage at Wake Forest College in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Friday appeared very optimistic over Wake Forest fortunes this fall and expressed a great deal of enthusiasm over University of Nebraska hopes.

Amen, a former Lincoln High and Nebraska star, who was named the top football coach in the ACC last year by the loop's Sports Writers Association, and his family are currently visiting in Lincoln.

The Deacon coach plans for this season include "a better balanced team" all around than last but he added that any improvement made in the team as whole will have to come in addition to replacing full-back Bill Barnes, Wake Forest's All-American last season.

The Deacons finished with only a 2-5-3 mark in Amen's first year at the helm, but his squad, the smallest in the conference, gave every foe a battle the full 60 minutes and showed signs of going up.

Amen entered the Wake Forest picture in 1956 from the U. S. Military Academy with a three-year contract reportedly worth $10,000 annually. Almost overnight, he has built what appears to be a future conference contender.

Questioned while relaxing at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Amen of 601 D, the genial Paul chuckled "when I went to Wake Forest I had a three-year contract and a five-year building program in mind." After one season he was given a new five-year pact.

Asked to comment on Nebraska's football chances under new coach Bill Jennings, Amen said, "Nebraska has a top-flight coach in Bill. I have the greatest respect for him both as a gentleman and a coach."

Amen, who played against Jennings (then with Oklahoma) as an end on Nebraska football teams in 1935-37, plans a visit with the new Husker mentor while he is in Lincoln but added that chances for a Nebraska-Wake Forest grid series appear far in the offing.

"We hope to be near the top in the ACC by 1960," Amen said, adding that his five-year plan should begin to really pay off then. The Deacon mentor said the Baptists in North Carolina are "intensely interested" in the school and that the grants from them and from the R. J. Reynolds tobacco family have made his situation "fabulous."

Amen said he was happy to see the addition of Oklahoma State University (nee A&M) to the Big Seven, commenting that it should strengthen the conference greatly. He believes ACC and Big Seven football are "very much on the same level."

While in Lincoln, Amen plans visits with both his and his wife's (he is married to the former Florence Moll of Lincoln) parents. He intends to visit a sister in Colorado while accompanying his parents to Denver where they will attend a National Conference of the Congregational Christian Church.

The 40-year-old Amen is the father of three daughters, Barbara, Karen Sue and Kathy.

SAM MILEY TO START FOR CHIEFS TONIGHT

The Western League jinx — a bad weather — forced postponement of the Lincoln-Sioux City game at Sherman Field Friday night.

The field was a quagmire as a result of Thursday night's rain.

General Manager Dick Wagner said the game would be made up as part of a doubleheader later in the month.

Larry Shepard's Chiefs will meet the hot-running Soos in a single game at Sherman Field Saturday night. Game time is 8 p.m.

George Perez (4-2) is slated to pitch for Lincoln, which is trying to get back on the track after suffering eight losses in nine games on the recent road trip.

Friday's postponement because of wet grounds was only the second Lincoln washout of the year. The Chiefs have been rained out four times on the road for a total of six this season.

Sam Miley, who starred for the 1956 Western League champs, hitting .343 to lead the club, is slated to be in uniform Saturday night.

White Sox Beaten In 11th, 3-2 Orioles' Francona Singles For Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Baltimore's Orioles nipped the league-leading Chicago White Sox 3-2 Friday night on Tito Francona's run-scoring single in the 11th inning.

The loss didn't affect Chicago's five-game lead since the second-place New York Yankees dropped a 6-3 decision at Detroit.

Bob Nieman, ex-White Sox, opened the 11th with a double to right center off Sox starter and loser, Jack Harshman who suffered his second loss against four victories.

Al Pilarcik ran for Nieman and stayed at second as Gus Triandos fled to right. Francona then dumped a single along the left-field line to knock in the winning run.

George Zuverink, who spelled starter Art Ceccarelli in the ninth, was credited with the victory—his fifth against two losses.

The Orioles scored a run in the first but found themselves trailing as the Sox scored single runs in the sixth and seventh. Baltimore tied it in the eighth when Billy Gardner's grounder went through Nellie Fox's leg and Dick Williams drove Gardner home with a long double to right.

Baltimore's first run came on a single by Gardner, a stolen base and a single by Triandos.

The Sox tied it 1-1 in the sixth on Sherman Lollar's single, a walk and Walt Dropo's pinch single and then went ahead 2-1 in the seventh on a walk, a sacrifice and Minnie Minoso's single to center.

The Sox outthrew the Orioles 12-8 but were guilty of faulty base running. With one out in the second, Sammy Esposito doubled and Fox singled, but Esposito was caught at the plate on a great throw by Nieman. Minoso then beat out a bunt single but Fox rounded second and was tagged out on a throw from George Kell to Gardner.

Nats Jar Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Last-place Washington broke out of a 7-7 tie with four runs—three unearned—in the eighth inning Friday night to win 11-7 over the Cleveland Indians who now have lost five straight, their longest string of setbacks this season.

Rocky Colavito hit two home runs for the Indians, and Milt Bolling contributed one to Washington's 16th hit attack against six Tribe hurlers.

The deciding run was scored by Roy Sievers, who led off the eighth with a double. He went to third on a ground-out and scored when shortstop Larry Raines muffed Bolling's grounder.

Pueblo Wins 2nd Game To Split With Dukes

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Fast-ball specialist Lou Hribar pitched the Pueblo Dodgers to a 10-3 victory over Albuquerque Friday night after the Dukes had won the seven-inning opener of a Western League doubleheader, 3-1.

Hribar issued 11 walks, but he was staked to a four-run lead in the first inning and managed to complete the nine-inning distance.

In the first contest, right-handed Dick Drilling stopped the Dodgers on seven hits.
